

Unyielding Dreams A Boy's Journey to Touch the Stars

The stars above are shining bright,
A little boy dreams of the height,
He gazes up at the endless sky,
And wonders what it's like to fly.

He yearns to leave the world below,
To soar through space and boldly go,
To see the planets up close and near,
And conquer the unknown without fear.

He studies science, math, and more,
To learn about the universe's core,
He works hard every single day,
To make his dream come true in some way.

He knows it won't be easy to achieve,
But he's determined and won't deceive,
He'll work hard and give it his all,
To reach his goal and stand tall.

As the boy grows up, his dream endures,
He works hard and perseveres
In the vast emptiness of the cosmic sea,
To explore and discover, to leave his trace.
Where he'll push his limits and truly be free

And then the day comes when he's ready to go,
To leave the Earth and put on a show,
To soar through the sky, to touch the divine,
To fulfill his dream, to make it all align.

He climbs aboard the spacecraft, with a heart full of pride,
And blasts off into the heavens, with nothing to hide,
He feels the G-forces, the rumble of the engines,
As he ascends higher, to the edge of the heavens.

And then he's there, in the vastness of space,
Surrounded by stars, in an otherworldly place,
He looks back at Earth, a blue and green sphere,
And realizes that his dream has become real, and clear.

So let him fly, let him soar,
Let him explore, and so much more,
For he is an astronaut, a hero of space,
A dreamer who made it, with grace.