

One Day

One day you will wake up, and it will make sense.
The missing piece to your puzzle will finally fit.
All the tears, the "losses", the pain, you will see that it was only temporary rain.
This rain will clear and sunshine will take you up from here.

I can promise, that you will finally find what you want to do.
You will look at life from a positive view.
Your true purpose will reveal itself.
The answers you reached for will no longer be on the top shelf.

Things will never be perfect, but peace will fill your spirit.
You will start to take in every minute.
Time will never stop for you, so dust yourself off and run with it.
Keep going, and cherish this life you're living.

As you read this, you may be in a low place.
You may feel as if you are running an inevitable race.
A race where you never win; negative emotions fill from within.
Just keep on finding the light.

Your life will feel right.
The storm will clear and your rainbow will appear.
Nothing bad is going to stay.

Don't ever stop believing in that "one day".